

The following is an introduction to a genealogy sketch of William Carlton, son of John Carlton and Nancy Ann Alderman Carlton, and his descendants. The sketch was one of many researched and written by the late William M. Carlton.

"John Carlton was born in Craven County, NC, on April 20, 1775, two days after Paul Revere made his famous ride: so this branch of the Carlton family came into being simultaneously with the United States of America. His father was Thomas Carleton, a Revolutionary soldier who served with the North Carolina troops. John Carlton grew to manhood in Duplin County, NC., and there he married, on November 17, 1797, Nancy Ann Alderman, born November 17, 1775, daughter of David Alderman, a Revolutionary soldier, and Jemima Hall, his wife. David Alderman was the son of Daniel Alderman and Abigail Harris. Daniel Alderman was the son of Thomas Alderman and Mary Segrove (Seagrave) and Thomas Alderman was the son of William Alderman and Mary Case, the said William Alderman having come to Massachusetts from England about 1670.

"The Case family is related to the Spencer family of England and America; and through this line our family connections can be traced back to a number of the Surety Barons who enforced the provisions of the Magna Charta after King John had been forced to sign that immortal document at Runnymede in 1215.

"John Carlton and his family moved to Bulloch County, GA., about 1821, and, a few years later, to Thomas County, where several of the children already had gone. The younger children grew to manhood and womanhood there, and most if not all of them married there. In the early 1850's John Carlton sold his possessions in Thomas County and moved to Madison County, Florida, where he spent his remaining years. He died February 26, 1868 and his wife of seventy years died on June 4, 1867. Both are buried in Friendship Cemetery near Moseley Hall, FL., and their graves are plainly marked though the gravestones are small.

"John Carlton was the third child and the eldest son of Thomas Carleton and his wife, Martha, of Duplin County, NC. Thomas Carleton is said by some, including the late Milton D. Wilson of Bartow, FL, to have been born in Chester County, PA., on May 10, 1747; but this I have not been able to confirm to my satisfaction. Although there were Carletons in Chester County from 1711 or earlier until the time of the Revolutionary War or later, I have been unable to establish a definite connection between them and our own branch of the family. Neither have I been able to confirm that Thomas was descended from Edward Carleton of Rowley, MA., who came to that colony with Rev. Ezekiel Rogers' company in 1638. Although this has been claimed by a number of people who have prepared abbreviated family histories, the descendants of Edward Carleton have been well accounted for up to the time of the Revolutionary War, at which time our branch of the family was already settled in North Carolina; and up to that time none of Edward's descendants had migrated southward. Thomas Carleton had an older brother, John Carleton, who settled in North Carolina prior to 1757, at which time his eldest son was born in Craven County; and he is said to have come from Chester County, Pa. This requires further research."

1. Thomas I Culton (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 10a.) was born Bef. 1522 in Beeford, co. Yorkshire, England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 10a.), and died Aft. 1524 in England (Source: Hazen, T. Notes for Thomas Culton:

FROM LAY SUBSIDIES FOR CO. York

14 and 15 Henry VIII [1522-1524] (202/167, 163) Beford. 'Thomas Culton' for goods . . .

The above record is the only one, to date, which definitely pertains to Thomas Carleton. Records contain names of other Carletons living in the area, but they have not been proved a part of this family, although they are undoubtedly related in some way.

(From NEHGR, vol. 93, pages 3-5) For about seventy years there has been current a pedigree purporting to show the direct descent of Mr. Edward Carlton, pioneer settler at Rowley, Massachusetts, in 1639, as of the nineteenth generation from a somewhat mythical Baldwin, of Carleton, near Penrith, co. Cumberland, England, at the time of the Norman Conquest, 1066. This pedigree emanated from Capt. Percival Augustus Carleton, of London, whose 'Memorials of the Carletons' was published posthumously in 1869. This account was received in this country by the late Rev. Hiram Carleton (1811-1893), of East Sandwich, Massachusetts, the genealogist of the family here, and was incorporated in his manuscript on the descendants of Edward Carleton, which remains on deposit, through the courtesy of his son, in the Library of the New England Historic Genealogical Society. A condensed account of this pedigree (with a coat of arms) has been published in the 'History of Littleton, New Hampshire,' and elsewhere, and has probably been widely accepted.

The contributor of the present article (T. E. Hazen) always felt a strong attachment to this Carleton pedigree, and the coat of arms which had hung in his grandfather's home, but about 1911 he began to have doubts in regard to the foundations of the tradition, and arranged to have a search made in London, to include all the pertinent wills and parish registers, which it was hoped might settle the matter. The result was, briefly, that it transpired that the person assumed to be our immigrant ancestor, imagined to have been born about 1605, was actually born so much later that he would have been only a youth in his teens at the time when the pioneer is known to have come to Massachusetts, bringing a wife and son in the Rev. Ezekiel Rogers's company, among whom from the first he held a leading place. We need only quote this item from the parish register of St. Bartholomew by the Royal Exchange, London: 'Edward Carleton sonne of Arasmus and Elizabeth was christined the 3 of December 1620.' The will of Erasmus Carleton, dated 1624, and proved in 1625 could, of course, give us no help, even if his son had been our immigrant.

(Attention should be called to the fact that Mrs. Mary Lovering Holman, in more recently going over the same field of investigation for her new 'Pillsbury Ancestry' (published by the Rumford Press in May 1938), has arrived at the same conclusion that the connection of the immigrant Edward Carlton with the London family must be discarded.)

The search then turned to Yorkshire, the natural region to look for the origin of a member of Mr. Rogers's Company. All the Carleton wills of the York Registry were obtained, and it was at once apparent that there were about three general centers of Carleton families in this County, and no evidence that these three groups were related to each other. The naïf assumption of Captain Percival Carleton that the Carleton family is a unit may be only a blissful dream, based on the characteristic British habit of ignoring any families outside of one's main line. He had certainly neglected the most elementary sources of information. The examination of the three groups of wills also readily indicated the family group of the East Riding as the only one with which our ancestor could be connected, which might also have been predicted, as within the circle of influence of Rev. Ezekiel Rogers. Our particular center, the parish of Beeford, lying on a radius only about eighteen miles distant from Rowley, the home of Mr. Rogers.

[This search was made for me by Mrs. J. Gardner Bartlett (at that time Miss Elizabeth French), 'English record searcher for the Committee on English Research of the New England Historic Genealogical Society'). Miss French, readily perceiving that our ancestor never should have been attached to a family of London merchants and gentlemen, then proceeded to hunt for him in Yorkshire. There she obtained most of the direct wills, and abstracts from the Beeford parish register, which furnish part of the foundation of the present account. She regarded the matter as so satisfactorily settled that, presumably on her report. The chairman of this Committee importuned me to publish the results in the Register about twenty years ago. I steadfastly maintained that the report was inadequate, and have, during several visits to England since that time, made numerous additions, including the identity of the wives of four generations of the direct line, and much of their ancestry, important fines, etc. I have also personally re-examined most of the wills, reading the originals where possible. Thus correcting some errors of the registered copies.

I must record my indebtedness to Mr. G. Andrews Moriarty, whom I first met in the Public Record Office in London in 1927, and whose unflinching interest and sound advice have materially furthered this report. -T. E. H.]

If Captain Carleton had ever contemplated the array of thirty-three Carlton place names, and ten Carleton names listed in The National Gazetteer, would he have so blithely assumed that an obscure hamlet in Cumberland was the sole place from which a family could have adopted the surname of Carleton? Indeed, we have the express statement by Poulson, the careful historian of Holderness, in his description of the township of Carlton in the parish of Aldbrough, that, 'The family of Carlton, according to the custom of ancient times, took their surname from the place of their residence. Sir John Carlton, Kt. occurs in an attestation of a grant of lands, 34 Edward I' [1286]. (History and Antiquities of the Seigniorship of Holderness in the East-Riding of the County of York, 1841, G. Poulson, vol. 2, pp.7, 24.) He is doubtless identical with Sir John de Carleton, Kt., set forth in the Rolls as 'dead 1 May 1305, holding lands at Garton, Aldburgh, and Carleton in Holderness.' (Knights of Edward I, Harleian Society, 1929, vol. 1, p.182.)

Our Beeford Carleton family might well have come from this stock, though we have found no proof of such an origin. It should be noted that in his manuscript, Rev. Hiram Carleton (who was a revered great-uncle of the present writer) wrote: 'The parentage of Edward Carleton, who came to Rowley, Massachusetts, in 1638, has not been determined with absolute certainty by any known record, so far as I have been informed. I corresponded with Capt. Percival Augustus Carleton, when he was preparing his 'Memorials.' on the subject. He made search in the records of the College of Heralds to ascertain the name of the father of the ancestor of the Massachusetts Carletons. His conclusion was satisfactory to himself, and accords with facts known to me. . . . I will add here, that inasmuch as the Carletons as a family belong to the same stock, and the branches are similar in all important characteristics, it does not seem to be of very great consequence to be able to prove by records our line of descent.' Could there be a more hopeless premise for modern genealogical work! Perhaps we ought to point out alternative possibilities as to the origin of this Beeford family, it might have been derived from a rather extensive family long settled in the region of Carlton Miniott, near Thirsk, some distance north of York. A fragmentary pedigree of four generations of this family, extending from before 1299 to 1352, is recorded with the pedigree of Pigot of Clotherham, in Glover's Visitation of Yorkshire, 1584/5 (edited by Joseph Foster). The arms of Sir Roger de Clotherham, 1302, displayed a quartering of three pheons, which suggests the ancient arms of Carleton of Cumherlaad, indicating that he might have claimed descent from an heiress of that family. (See further Victoria History County of York, North Riding, vol. 2, p.64.) Plantagenet Harrison's History of Yorkshire (page 578) furnishes a more extended pedigree of an early Carleton family of the township of Carleton near Aldbrough in the parish of Stanwick St. John, on the northern border of the North Riding, ascribing to it a different coat of arms (lacking the three pheons). Certainly American Carletons can no longer find any justification for using the traditional arms of Carleton of London and Surrey.

For the sake of those who feel disappointment in our demolition of the traditional pedigree, it may be pointed out that there was little beyond its mere antiquity for which to cherish that pedigree (since it contained practically no marriages to notable heiresses), while there is immeasurable gain in this new pedigree, through the inheritance of Edward Carlton's grandmother, Ellen Strickland; her grandmother, Katherine Neville, can readily be traced back through many of the early Norman families of the period of the Conquest, with numerous royal ramifications.

We do not claim that we have proved that our Massachusetts pioneer came from the Beeford family. The evidence accumulated is so strong as to leave no reasonable doubt: we have found there an Edward Carlton born at the proper time, marrying at the proper time a wife named Ellen, whose parents had been married in the parish of Sir Matthew Boynton, known for his interest in the emigration to Massachusetts, then this Edward and Ellen Carlton disposing of a considerable property (the inheritance of the said Ellen) in the same year in which the emigrants must have come over.

Child of Thomas Culton is:

+2i. John<sup>2</sup> Carleton, born Unknown in probably Beeford, co. Yorkshire, England; died Bef. February 21, 1575/76 in Brandesburton, co. Yorkshire, England.

2. John<sup>2</sup> Carleton (Thomas<sup>1</sup> Culton) was born Unknown in probably Beeford, co. Yorkshire, England (Source: (1) Shockley, Charline Pennell, The Carlton Family of Hardin County, Kentucky and Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California., (2) Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 33.), and died Bef. February 21, 1575/76 in Brandesburton, co. Yorkshire, England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 33.).

Notes for John Carleton:

John Carleton of Brandesburton, East Riding, Yorkshire, was buried at Brandesburton 21 Feb. 1576. He was probably the son of Thomas, recorded as 'Thomas Culton' of Beeford in subsidies of 1523-4. The name is not found in later subsidies, although it is certain that families of that name were living in the area. It is well known that sometimes these subsidy lists contained merely a few names of representative inhabitants, and were by no means like a complete census. It is also suggested that there were perhaps numerous tax evasions then as now. The fragmentary records indicate only two children for the John Carleton family.

Children of John Carleton are:

+3i. Thomas<sup>3</sup> Carleton, born 1525-1530 in Beeford, co. Yorkshire, England; died Bef. May 01, 1582 in England.

+4ii. Edward Carleton, born Unknown in Beeford, co. Yorkshire, England; died Aft. 1577.

Notes for Thomas Carleton:

Thomas Carleton of Beeford, born ca. 1525-30, died before May 1582, married Jennette Wilson. (Also spelled Janet and Jennett). The widow was appointed administrator of her husband's estate and presented her account during the year of 1582.

Thomas was well established in Beeford, Yorkshire, in 1573 when his friend, William Morris bequeathed to him 'my best cote and my daggar,' and he also joined in giving bonds for the payment of other legacies of the same will. The parish register of Beeford began in 1563--not early enough to give a record of baptism or marriage of Thomas' children--but it would appear that he had no large family, or at least they did not reach maturity, for all Carleton names found in Beeford parish registers can be placed in the family of his one son, John.

A Chancery Court suit of Thomas Carleton (grandson of Thomas) shows that Jennett Wilson, wife of Thomas, was a sister of Thomas Wilson, gentleman. Thomas Wilson died about 1609 leaving his wife as executrix of his will and his grand-nephew, Thomas Carleton, heir to his houses and lands in Kingston-on-Hull.

Chancery Proceedings. (Public Record Office, London) 19 May 1625 [:BOLD]

Thomas Carlton of Lockington in the county of York (grandson of Thomas) showed the court that he was heir to his grandmother's brother's estate which consisted of 'three tenements with the gardens thereto belonging of the yearly value of twenty pounds and upwards, neere unto blacke frior gate in Kingston upon Hull.' Thomas Carlton was under-age at the time of his uncle's death, and Wilson's widow had had use and income from the property until her death, ca. 1617.

At the time of the widow's death, Thomas Carlton was not well and was unable to travel to Kingston upon Hull to see about his property, and an Anne Sparrowe, executrix to the estate of Agnes Wilson, widow, with her husband, William Sparrowe, had 'combyned and confederated themselves' with others to 'defeate and defraud' said Thomas Carlton of his just and lawful title to the property, and had received and taken the profits for their own use. Thomas Carlton asks the court to order them to appear in court and give him his legal rights to this property.

Child of Thomas Carleton and Jennett Wilson is:

+5i. John<sup>4</sup> Carleton, born 1550-1555 in Beeford, co. Yorkshire, England; died Bef. January 27, 1622/23 in co. Yorkshire, England. 4. Edward<sup>3</sup> Carleton (John<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup> Culton) (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 33, QUAY 2 .) was born Hardin County, Kentucky and Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California.), and died Aft.

1577 (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 33.).

Notes for Edward Carleton:

EDWARD CARLETON, of Beeford, Esquire, is known chiefly through the Chancery suit brought against him in 1577 by Lord Lumley, in which the complainant charged that Carleton had purchased the manor of Hempholme, but had failed to complete the transaction or to pay the full amount of 1500 pounds agreed upon. Edward Carleton had earlier lived in the neighboring parish of Brandesburton, where a daughter, probably his youngest child, was buried in 1559, the year after the beginning of the parish register, and where the one assumed to be his eldest son continued to live for a generation subsequently.

FROM CHANCERY PROCEEDINGS (Preserved in the Public Record Office, London.)

The Bill of JOHN LUMLEY, knight, Lord Lumley, complaining that, whereas John Knottsford of Mutche Mawborn, co. Worcester, esquire, and Jane his wife, mother to the complainant, were seised about twelve months past, in the right of the said Jane, of and in the manor of Hempholme alias Octonholme in Holdernes, co. York, the reversion belonging to the Complainant and his heirs; indentures dated 16 May, 19 Elizabeth [1577] were made between the complainant and John Knottisforde and Jane his wife, on the one part, and one Edwarde Carleton of Beeforde, co. York, gent., on the other part, whereby the premises were sold to Carleton for the consideration of £1500; the indentures were sealed by the complainant only, and Carleton neither signed them nor caused them to be enrolled in Chancery, neither did he pay the money at the times specified: afterwards by indenture enrolled, dated 20 July [sic], the complainant conveyed the premises to Sir Thomas Hennage, knight, treasurer of Her Majesty's Chamber, and the Lady Anne his wife. Now, the said Edwarde Carleton, by colour of the indenture sealed by the complainant, has made divers entries into the premises and has also begun a suit against the complainant upon a recognizance to perform covenants. Complainant therefore begs for a writ of subpoena to be directed to Edwarde Carleton.

The accompanying subpoena, dated at Westminster 28 April, in the 20th year of the Queen [1578], is directed to Edward Carleton, esquire.

Answer of Edward Carleton, defendant. Complainant, together with John Knottisforde and his wife Jane, bargained to sell the said lands and lands in Ratsay, Yorks. Defendant has paid part of the sum mentioned, but has been hindered in his possession of the premises by John Knottisforde and Jane, who also refused to sign the indenture. [Further answers to statements of complainant's bill; but no other personal or place names are mentioned.] (Chancery Proceedings, Series 2, Elizabeth, Bundle 117, no. 25.)[:ITAL]

Children of Edward Carleton are:

- +6i. John<sup>4</sup> Carleton, born 1540-1545; died Abt. 1589 in co. Yorkshire, England.
- +7ii. William Carleton, born Unknown; died Unknown.
- 8iii. Isabel Carleton, born Unknown (Source: Shockley, Charline Pennell, The Carlton Family of Hardin County, Kentucky and Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California.); died 1559 in England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 35.).

Notes for Isabel Carleton:

Listed as daughter of Edward Carleton.

5. John<sup>4</sup> Carleton (Thomas<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup> Culton) was born 1550-1555 in Beeford, co. Yorkshire, England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), pp. 34-35.), and died Bef. January 27, 1622/23 in co. Yorkshire, England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 35.). He married Ellen Strickland Abt. 1582 in England, daughter of Walter Strickland and Margaret Hamerton.

Notes for John Carleton:

John was born perhaps about 1550-1555, was buried at Beeford 27 Jan. 1622/3. He married Ellen (daughter of Walter Strickland of Sizergh, Co. Westmorland, Esquire), who is specifically mentioned as his wife in John Carleton's first land transaction of which we have record, the fine by which he and Philip Hawdenby sold land in Great Kelke in 1582, the year of birth of his son Walter Carleton, father of the American emigrant, Edward Carlton. She apparently survived her husband, being commended in his will to loving obedience on the part of her sons, though her name is there disappointingly omitted. She is also mentioned as 'my Mother Carleton' in the will of her son Walter in 1622.

The records of the Beeford Manor Court show that the Will of Henry Dryver was proved in 1586 before William Thomson, clerk, and John Carleton, steward of said Court, the inventory indicating a debt of seven pounds owed by the testator to John Carleton. He was frequently mentioned as steward of the court until 1614, a period of about twenty-eight years. The fact that he could write the Latin probate records for this court indicates that he was a man of education beyond what would be expected in a countryman. Mrs. Bartlett's notes from the manorial records of Holme-on-Spalding-Moor (a south Yorkshire parish whence came several families with Rev. Ezekiel Rogers) reveal the fact that a John Carleton was steward of the manor court there in 1619. It is possible that his long experience in the Beeford court made an occasion for calling our John Carleton to this other parish temporarily. Repeated searches of the parish registers and bishop's transcripts of Holme fail to disclose any Carleton records. Those registers, however, are notably deficient for this period. His later activities appear in his purchases of lands in Beeford in 1611/12, and finally in Hornsea and Great Hatfield (from his son Walter, and the latter's brother-in-law, John Ombler) in 1621.

His original will, evidently written in his own hand and bearing his autograph twice, is still in a good state of preservation after 300 years, but is too discolored to lend itself to photographic reproduction. This will, at a first reading, might indicate a larger number of children than shown by the parish register (which otherwise appears to be very complete at this period). A more careful study of the records, however, leads to the conclusion that the testator treated all his daughters-in-law with the same regard as his one real daughter, first named. His 'son Thomas Norton' was probably a stepson, rather than son-in-law, particularly since John Carleton, Jr. (in his will of 1643), names his 'brother Thomas Norton' and his 'sister Mareget Norton,' the latter not being mentioned by John Carleton, Sr. Surely she would have been if she had been his daughter, rather than merely the wife of his stepson.

Following the registered copy of John Carleton's will (York, vol.39, fo 5) is this record: On the same day [22 Nov. 1626] the said dean [Mr. Wilfitt, dean of Holderness] certified concerning the proving of this will, through the witnesses named, being sworn; administration on the goods of the said deceased was committed to Thomas Carleton, son, sole executor named in the same will, being previously sworn.

The Act Book, Holderness Deanery, 1626, has the following record: And on the same day and year [22 Nov. 1626] the said dean [Mr. Welfit] certified concerning the proving of the will of John Carleton late of Beeford in the Diocese of York deceased through the witnesses named, committed to John Carleton son of the said deceased and one of the executors named in the will, being previously sworn, power being reserved to the other executors in said will, and there was exhibited an inventory of over 40 pounds.*

* The quindene of Easter, when the Easter term started in the 14th year of Charles I fell on 8 April. Probably the Court would sit on the Monday, 9 April 1638, which may be considered as the date of this fine. (L. J. R.)

For the sake of its confirmation of the identity of John Carleton's wife, the following brief abstract of a long will of her stepmother is introduced, a will which has been unknown to, or at least ignored by, all the Strickland historians.

18 Jan. 1586. I, Alice, Lady Boynton of Rippon in the county of York, widdow: And for my leace of Bexworth I give and bequeath the same unto my sonne Thomas Strickland as executor of this my last will to make [Minor bequests to servants.] All the rest of my goods I give unto my sonn Thomas Strickland, whom I make executor. Proved 24 March 1595, and administration granted to Thomas Strickland Esquire, executor named in the will. (York Registry, vol.26, fo 250.)

The discrepancy between this probate act and the note appended to the record of the will is perplexing. Did Dean Wilfitt change his mind during the day, so as to make separate rulings on the ambiguous clause of the will at the request of two sons? It is surprising also to note that the will was not presented for probate until three and a half years after the death of the testator when Thomas and John Carlton were the only surviving sons.

Ellen Strickland, wife of John Carleton comes from a very old and distinguished family. Upon the death of her father, Walter, Esquire, and after the subsequent marriage of her step-mother, Alice, to Sir Thomas Boynton in 1573-4, she probably moved with the Boyntons to Yorkshire where she may have married into one of the numerous Norton families of that area and had the child that John Carleton refers to affectionately in his will of 1620 as 'my sonne Thomas Norton'. Such a removal to Yorkshire might have given her an opportunity of making a second alliance with John Carleton of Beeford.

Feet of Fines, Yorkshire, 24 Elizabeth (1582). Bundle 19

(The Hawdenbys and the Carltons were related through Ellen Carleton's stepmother, Alice (Tempest) (Place) Strickland).

King's Court, Westminster, 9 James I (1611/12) in Octaves of Hilary [BOLD]

Feet of Fines, Yorkshire, 19 James I (1621), Bundles 383 and 389 [BOLD]

John Carleton and John, his son, purchase land from Walter and Jane Carleton and John and Elizabeth Omler consisting of 1 messuage, 1 garden, 160 acres of land, 60 acres of meadow, 200 acres of pasture; 3 acres of wood, 60 acres of furze and heath, and common pasture for all beasts in Hornsey, Hornsey-Burton, and Great Hatfield. Price--240 pounds.

A record in the Act Book, Holderness Deanery, 1626, states that on 22

November, 1626, Dean Wilfitt certified the proving of the will, and the administration was committed to John Carleton, son of the deceased, and one of those named in the will. The inventory was over 40 pounds.

An interesting note is the change in executor, and the fact that the will was not probated until 1626, some three and one-half years after the death of the testator, when Thomas and John were the only surviving sons.

Notes for Ellen Strickland:
The Strickland Family

Sizergh, the name of the Strickland family home, is of Scandinavian origin, and originates from the Scandinavian occupation of England in the 9th and 10th Centuries. Along with a large gift of other lands, Sizergh was granted by Henry II about 1170-80 to Gervase d'Eyncourt (Deincourt), a cadet of the great baronial family of that name in Lincolnshire. These possessions continued in the d'Eyncourt family for several generations until Elizabeth, great-granddaughter of Gervase, became the sole heiress, and conveyed them all in marriage to her husband, Sir William Strickland in 1239. From that time, this has been the residence of the Strickland family.

In earlier times, the family was known as 'de Castlecarrock,' and they were descended from the Norman family of Vaux (or de Vallibus), and therefore allied to the family of Gilles. In 1179, Walter de Castlecarrock married, moved to the manor of Great Strickland in north Westmoreland acquired through his wife, and assumed the name 'de Strickland.' The name meant 'the pastureland of young cattle.' This Walter was later knighted and was the great-grandfather of the Sir William mentioned above.

Family members have been found in Parliament in almost every generation until the end of the 17th Century. They have also been involved in other parts of Government, including the military, up to the present time.

Walter Strickland, born 5 Apr. 1516, died 8 March 1569, was the eldest son and heir of Sir Walter Strickland and Katherine Neville. His marital affairs are not entirely clear. On 8 March 1535, while under age, he was contracted to marry Margaret Hamerton, daughter of Sir Stephen Hamerton, but there is no record of the marriage ever taking place, and it is said that Margaret took her own life a few days before the expected marriage. In records of 1537, Walter is mentioned as having a wife, Agnes. It is entirely possible that Agnes is the same as Ann, a younger daughter of Sir Stephen Hamerton, and she may also be the mother of Ellen, since Ellen and John named their first child Ann. Whatever the name and identity of the mother, Walter recognized Ellen as his 'natural daughter' and made provision for her in his will. Ellen also apparently lived with her father in Sizergh Castle. Walter married ca. 1560/1, Alice (Tempest) Place, widow of Christopher Place, Yorkshire. After Walter's death, Alice married Sir

Thomas Boynton.

It was during the time that Walter and Alice (Tempest) Strickland lived in the castle that all the Elizabethan part was built and paneling installed. Alice remained at Sizergh Castle after the death of Walter and her marriage to Sir Thomas Boynton to look after the young Strickland children. Being a lady of great taste, she was responsible for much of the paneling and other 16th Century ornamentation. After Sir Thomas Boynton's death, Alice moved to Yorkshire and here the marriage of Ellen to John Carleton took place. Alice also made provision in her will for Ellen Strickland, daughter of her deceased husband, Walter.

Sizergh castle still stands and is in good condition. It was given in 1950 to the National Trust and is open for tours. The present Strickland family lives in one wing of the castle.

Notes for John Carleton:

JOHN, 'of Bransburton, weaver,' born perhaps about 1540; died about 1589; married Agnes ???, who was buried at Brandesburton 2 June 1591.

In his will, dated 14 Dec. 1588 and proved 9 Sept. 1589, Agnes, his wife, was appointed executrix, with power reserved to his six surviving children. The striking similarity in the list of his children to the names of the children of the contemporary John Carleton of Beeford indicates that the two men must have been cousins, if not brothers. A careful consideration of the other items of the parish register leads to the conclusion that this John must have been the son of Edward above.

The Will of JOHN CARLETON of Bransburton, within Holderness, county of York, weaver, dated 14 Dec. 1588. To my two eldest sons Edward Carleton and Robert Carleton my workhouse with all necessary looms belonging to the occupation of a weaver. To George Carleton, my son, a brown cow. I will my wife shall bring up a calf of the said cow and give to Mathewe Carleton. If the said George die, then the said Mathewe shall have both the cow and the calf. I give my farmhold and the title thereof to my wife to bring up my said children. All the residue of my goods, my debts paid and funeral expenses discharged, I give to Agnes my wife, Robert Carleton, Edward Carleton, Mathewe Carleton, and George Carleton, my sonns, and Jane Carleton and Suzan Carleton, my daughters, whom I make my executors. I desire my brother, William Carleton if he be so minded to take unto him my son Edward with the half of the workhouse to learn the occupation belonging to a weaver. Witnesses: William Smithe and others. Proved 9 Sept. 1589 by Agnes relict and executrix, with power reserved to Robert, Edward, Mathew, George, Jane and Suzan Carleton, children of the deceased and co-executors named in the will. (York Probate Registry, vol.24, fo 97.)

Children of John Carleton and Agnes ??? are:

Notes for Agnes Carleton:

Agnes, born probably in another parish (the home of her mother), possibly even in Beeford, where marriages of this period are not preserved; buried at Brandesburton 4 Jan. 1566.

16ii. Jane Carleton, born 1568 (Source: Shockley, Charline Pennell, The Carlton Family of Hardin County, Kentucky and Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California.); died Unknown.

Notes for William Carleton:

WILLIAM, mentioned in the will of his brother John Carleton. He is perhaps the William Carleton who had two daughters, Ann and Elizabeth, baptized in Preston in 1581 and 1585, respectively, and possibly also the William Carleton of Coniston on whose estate administration was granted to his relict Alice Carleton 14 Apr. 1608.

Possibly belonging to one of these families was a certain William Carleton of Kingston-upon-Hull, whose family is recorded in the parish register of Holy Trinity Church, but who cannot be definitely placed in this pedigree.

Children of William Carleton are:

9. Ann<sup>5</sup> Carleton (John<sup>4</sup>, Thomas<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup> Culton) was born 1578 in England (Source: Shockley, Charline Pennell, The Carlton Family of Hardin County, Kentucky and Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California.), and died Aft. 1620 in co. Westmoreland, England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), pp. 36-37.). She married (1) Alan Chamber Abt. 1594 in England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 36.), son of Walter Chamber and Anne Travers. She married (2) ??? Strickland Bef. 1620 in England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 37.).

Notes for Ann Carleton:

Ann Carleton died probably in co. Westmoreland where she was living with her second husband. Ann married Alan Chamber who was born ca. 1565 and died 5 Jan. 1614/5 in co. Westmoreland. Alan was a son of Walter and Anne (Travers) Chamber of The Hawes, Helsington, co. Westmoreland, and was a minor at the time of his father's death. In 1581, at the age of 16, he was granted in wardship to Sir Thomas Boynton, third husband of Anne's step-grandmother. Alan inherited from his father, The Hawes in the parish of Helsington, Hallhead Hall in Strickland Kettle, six burgages in Kendal, and other property, all in co. Westmoreland.

They had four sons and four daughters, set forth in Sir William Dugdale's Visitation of Yorkshire, 1666 (Publications of the Surtees Society, vol. 36, 1859). Probably some descendant of this family placed in Kendal church the modern memorial window to the Chamber family, but we have been unable to locate such descendants.

Notes for Elizabeth Prickett:

They had four sons and four daughters.

Notes for Thomas Carleton:

As no record of his marriage has been found, it probably occurred at Beeford, where marriage records are missing from the register, 1563-1626. From his fine of 1618/19, by which he sold a messuage and garden at Kingston-upon-Hull, it appears that his wife's name was Dorothy ??? - Probably she had died by 1620, since she is the only daughter-in-law not mentioned in John Carleton's will.

The Chancery Proceedings have preserved for us the interesting suit of Thomas Carlton of Lockington in 1625 to recover three tenements with gardens in Kingston, which he claimed he had inherited from his great uncle, Thomas Wilson, gent., brother to his grandmother, Jennett Carleton; thus furnishing a valuable item for this pedigree. He died intestate, and, 16 Oct. 1627, administration on his estate was granted to Edward Downes of Beeford during the minority of the children, Thomas, John, Philip, Margaret, Joas, and Elizabeth. Edward Downes may have been a brother of Thomas Carlton's wife, though not found in the Beeford register.

The Estate of THOMAS CARLETON of Lockington, 16 Oct. 1627. Administration on the goods of Thomas Carleton, late of Lockington, was granted to Edward Downes of Beforth, during the minority of Thomas, John, Phillip, Margaret, Joas, and Elizabeth Carleton, children of the deceased. The estate was under £40 in value. (York Probate Registry, Act Book, Harthill Deanery.)

March 19, 1624/25 in co. Yorkshire, England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 38.). He married Ann Hunter May 11, 1618 in Cottingham, England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 38.), daughter of John Hunter.

Notes for George Carleton:

George Carelton, of Cottingham, baptized at Beeford 27 Mar. 1581, buried at Cottingham 19 Mar. 1624/5. He married at Cottingham, 11 May 1618, Ann Hunter, baptized at Cottingham 1 Nov. 1595, daughter of John Hunter. She married secondly at Cottingham, 4 Feb. 1627/8, William Farrar, who died in 1643/4.

George Carleton was of Beeford at the time of his marriage, but apparently immediately settled in Cottingham, where he acquired lands which by his will he gave to his wife and three children. The daughters were also mentioned in the will of their stepfather, William Farrar, dated 10 Dec. 1643.

The Will of GEORGE CARLETON of Cottingham, 1624. 'In the name of God Amen the fourteenth day of March Anno Dni 1624 I George Carlton of Newland within the p'rish of Cottingham in the Countie of Yorke beinge sicke in bodye but p'fect in mind praised be god doe make and ordaine this my last will and Testmt in mann' and fforme ffollowinge that is to say I give and bequeathe my soule to Almighty god that gave it my maker and Redeemer and my body to bee buried in the Church of Cottingham hopinge that this both my soule and bodie shalbe saved not by any merits of mine but by the merits of Jesus Christ: first I give and bequeathe to the poore people within the p'rishe of Cottingha' xiii s iiij d It I give and bequeathe to Ann Carlton my wyfe the two closes called by the name of frier close for and duringe the time untill my children come to the ages of twentie and one yeares or be married whether shall happen first the remainder theirof of the little frier close and the one halfe of the great frier close beinge the north side of the greate close I give and bequeathe to John Carlton my sonne his heires and assignes forever. The probate act (Act Book, Holderness Deanery) states that the estate is above 40 pounds in value.

Children of George Carleton and Ann Hunter are:

45i. Ellen<sup>6</sup> Carleton, born Abt. 1619 in England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 39.); died Aft. 1646 (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 39.).

Notes for Ellen Carleton:

Ellen married ??? Farrar before 10 Dec. 1643. From the will of Robert Farrar, dated 9 Feb. 1646, it might be inferred that she was then the widow Ellen Lawrence of Kingston-upon-Hull, from whom he held by lease lands in Cottingham which appear to have been inherited from George Carleton. The Cottingham registers at this period are too fragmentary to shed light on these marriages. This Ellen Carlton seems to be the only one among the daughters and granddaughters of John Carleton to bear the name of his wife, Ellen Strickland.

46ii. John Carleton, born Abt. 1621 in England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 39.); died Aft. June 10, 1621 in England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 39.).

Notes for John Carleton:

Died apparently in infancy.

John apparently died in infancy.

47iii. Rachel Carleton, born Bef. June 23, 1623 in England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 39.); died Aft. December 10, 1643 (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 39.).

Notes for Rachel Carleton:

Rachel was living unmarried 10 Dec. 1643.

12. Walter<sup>5</sup> Carleton (John<sup>4</sup>, Thomas<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup> Culton) was born Bef. December 29, 1582 in Beeford, co. Yorkshire, England (Source: (1) Shockley, Charline Pennell, The Carlton Family of Hardin County, Kentucky and Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California., (2) Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 40.), and died October 04, 1623 in Hornsea, co. Yorkshire, England (Source: (1) Shockley, Charline Pennell, The Carlton Family of Hardin County, Kentucky and Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California., (2) Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 39.). He married Jane Gibbon 1607 in Hornsea, co. Yorkshire, England (Source: (1) Shockley, Charline Pennell, The Carlton Family of Hardin County, Kentucky and Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California., (2) Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 39.), daughter of Peter Gibbon and Margaret ???.

Notes for Walter Carleton:

Walter was baptized at Beeford 29 Dec. 1582, died at Hornsea 4 Oct. 1623. He married (license dated 1607) at Hornsea, Jane Gibbon, born about 1695, daughter of Peter and Margery (?) Gibbon, of Great Hatfield and Hornsea. Walter Carlton was the first of the family to leave the old homestead, for which he had such an affection that he returned to Beeford for the christening of his first two children (and most fortunately, since the early Hornsea register is lost). It may be imagined that his ability immediately commended him to the Gibbon family. In the year following his marriage he was joined with the mother of his very young wife in the administration of the estate of Peter Gibbon, who had died probably just about the time of his daughter's marriage to Walter. A similar expression of confidence is to be seen twelve years later, when he was named supervisor in the will of his wife's stepfather, William Ombler. In his various land transactions, as evidenced by the fines and by the Hornsea Survey of 1608, he was associated with the Gibbon inheritance.

In his will, dated 15 Mar. 1622, but not proved until 1626, it may be inferred that Walter Carlton's most important lands (in Great Hatfield, probably part of the Gibbon estate) went to his son Edward. It may be noted that the Widow Margery Gibbon had also held 'Shirewater,' given to his daughter Anne, in 1608. This same property, 'Sherewater,' was in the custody of Walter Carlton in 1610, when his cattle broke out of a pasture there, and put him under the necessity of paying a small fine, together with his brother-in-law, William Day. This is the only appearance of the Carleton name in the local court rolls during a period of fifteen years.

[22 Nov. 1626, Mr. Welfit, clerk, dean of Holderness] certified concerning the probate of the will of Walter Carleton, late of Hornsey Burton in the Diocese of York, deceased, through the witnesses sworn. Administration on the goods of the same deceased was granted to Robert Moore and William North, coexecutors named in the will, being previously sworn. Inventory above 40 pounds. (York, Act Book, Holderness Deanery, 1626.)

Mrs. Jane (Gibbon) Carlton presumably had to sacrifice her house and land in Hornsea Burton when she married again, 23 Jan. 1626, at Hornsea, William Birkell, Jr., of Mappleton. She probably took the younger children there with her, though Edward Carlton remained in Hornsea until 1629 at least. The loss of Hornsea and Mappleton registers precludes tracing her further.

King's Court, Westminster. 9 James I (1611/12) in Octaves of Hilary. Walter Carlton and wife, Jane, and their heirs, quitclaim land to Thomas Hornbye, consisting of 1 messuage, 30 acres of land, 10 acres of meadow, 10 acres of pasture, and common pasture for all beasts in Hornsey (Hornsea), in Holderness, for the sum of 41 pounds.

Notes for Jane Gibbon:

JANE, was born about 1594-5; married (1) at Hornsea, by license dated 1607, Walter Carlton, baptized at Beeford 29 Dec. 1582, died at Hornsea 4 Oct. 1623, son of John and Ellen (Strickland) Carleton; married (2) at Hornsea, 23 Jan. 1626, William Birkell, Jr., of Mappleton.

As Jane Birkell she was a legatee in the will of her mother in 1629, and she was mentioned in the will of her son William Carlton in 1639.

Children of Walter Carleton and Jane Gibbon are:

+48i. Edward<sup>6</sup> Carleton, born Bef. October 20, 1610 in Hornsea, England; died Abt. 1661 in England.
49ii. Thomas Carleton, born Abt. 1612 in Beeford, co. Yorkshire, England (Source: Shockley, Charline Pennell, The Carlton Family of Hardin County, Kentucky and Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California.); died Bef. September 30, 1657 in England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 40.).

Notes for Thomas Carleton:

Thomas, baptized at Beeford 10 Jan. 1612/13; living in 1643, when he was given a bequest of five pounds in the will of his uncle John Carlton. He is perhaps the Thomas Carlton buried at Barmston 30 Sept. 1657, and his estate mentioned as a creditor in the inventory of Thomas Bilton of Beeford, 5 Oct. 1657, in the Beeford Manor Court.

Maybe buried in Barmston, England.

50iii. Anne Carleton, born 1615-1619 in Hornsea, England (Source: Shockley, Charline Pennell, The Carlton Family of Hardin County, Kentucky and Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California.); died Aft. 1619 in England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 40.).

Notes for Anne Carleton:

Anne was probably born in Hornsea about 1615 or 1619. She is known only by the bequest of lands in Hornsea in her father's will.

51iv. William Carleton, born Abt. 1617 in Hornsea, England (Source: Shockley, Charline Pennell, The Carlton Family of Hardin County, Kentucky and Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California.); died Aft. May 1639 in England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 40.).

Notes for William Carleton:

William, born probably in Hornsea about 1617 (aged six years at the time of his father's death [Inquisition post mortem), died in 1639. The express statement in the inquisition taken after the death of Walter Carlton, that William 'is his son and heir,' at first occasioned some perplexity. It is, however, readily explained by a careful reading of the will and inquisition together: the half of a house and five bovates or oxgangs of freehold land (approximately 75 acres) in Hornsea Burton given to William by the will is the same property as that mentioned in the inquisition, and was the only land held of the King in capite, and therefore the only land to be considered by the jurors, who understood that William was the heir to this particular property, and made their report accordingly.

William evidently preferred a seafaring life to farming, and 'being about to take a voyage into New England ' in May 1639, made a nuncupative will, proved the following August, administration being granted to his brother Thomas. 'His sister Thomasin,' to whom he bequeathed a gold ring, was possibly the wife of his brother Thomas, but more probably his half sister, daughter of his mother by her second husband, named after her sister, Thomasine (Gibbon), wife of William Day. The bequest of another ring to my mother' indicates that Jane (Gibbon) (Carlton) Birkell was still living at this time. This projected voyage of William Carlton to follow his brother Edward to New England furnishes additional confirmation that Edward is placed in the right family.

that William Carleton of Kingston upon Hull within the Dioces of Yorke, mariner, about the tenth day of May last, being about to take a voyage into New England, he being then pr'sent in the shopp of one Cuthbert Prestwood in Kingston upon Hull, did give unto Thomas Carleton his brother the remainder of xxxli owing to him by Robert Whiteing of Hornsea Burton in Holderness in the County of Yorke, husbandman, after xvijli thereof paid to Lancelot Truslove, draper, and vijli to Cuthbert Prestwood, Mercer, Lancelott Truslove and Cuthbert Prestwood being then present, and he did then use such speeches, That they did verely conceive and doe believe that Willm Carleton's intencon was to make the said Thomas his executor, and they have seene a note or letter whereunto Willm Carleton is subscribed and written to his Sister Thomasin, and which they verely believe to be his hand, wherein these words are written That I have spoke to my brother Thomas Carleton; if that it please God to call me before I see you againe to buy you a gold ring, and my mother another gold ring about Twenty Shillings price, and of this as above are Wtnesses: Lancelott Truslove, Cuthbert Prestwood. Proved 29 August 1639; administration granted to Thomas Carlton brother of the deceased. (York Probate Registry, Filed will.)

The Carleton family belonged to the class of small gentry on the edge of yeomanry. They held positions of responsibility and prominence in their various communities, and Edward, the immigrant to America, was called 'Mr.' --a title not given to everyone. Various records show that considerable land was held by men of this name both in England and America.

14. John<sup>5</sup> Carleton (John<sup>4</sup>, Thomas<sup>3</sup>, John<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup> Culton) was born 1585 (Source: Shockley, Charline Pennell, The Carlton Family of Hardin County, Kentucky and Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California.), and died Aft. December 28, 1643 in co. Yorkshire, England (Source: (1) Shockley, Charline Pennell, The Carlton Family of Hardin County, Kentucky and Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California., (2) Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 37.). He married Rachel ??? Unknown.

Notes for John Carleton:

Date based on dated and signed will.

John, baptized 17 Feb. 1585/6 and buried at Beeford 15 Jan. 1643/4; married Rachel ???, buried at Beeford 26 Nov. 1654, having been mentioned in the will of John Carleton, Sr., as his daughter in 1620. The will of John Carleton, dated 28 Dec. 1643, was apparently not proved until 21 Dec. 1647. In it he makes bequests to Elizabeth Carleton (his niece), daughter of Thomas; to Thomas, son of Walter Carleton; and to 'me brother Thomas Norton' and 'me sister Margret Norton.' His wife Rachel received all his lands in Beeford, and was designated sole executrix. Two depositions made at Beverley, co. York, in 1628 by 'John Carlton of Beford, gent., aged forty years' (evidently in connection with a chancery suit over rents between other parties) may be cited as indicating that John and his brother Thomas were engaged in rather extensive agricultural operations, for they had leased lands of the dissolved Priory of Nunkeling (probably used for pasturage).

Related Families of, Unpublished, Santa Cruz, California., (2) Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 44.). He married Ellen Newton November 03, 1636 in St. Martin, Micklegate, co. Yorkshire, England (Source: Hazen, T. E., The English Ancestry of Edward Carlton of Rowley, Mass., (NEHG Register), p. 40.), daughter of Lancelot Newton and Mary Lee.

Notes for Edward Carleton:

On the death of his grandmother, Margery (Gibbon) Ombler, in 1629, 'Edward Carlton of Hornsey Burton, gent.,' was appointed by the court to succeed his father, Walter Carlton, as administrator of the unsettled portion of the estate of Peter Gibbon, an indication that even so early he gave promise of the ability which received recognition in his career in Rowley. No further mention of him is found until his marriage license in 1636, when he was called 'of Barmston.' It is surmised that he may have gone to this parish adjacent to Beeford because of the fact that Thomas Norton (probably his cousin, son of his father's half brother) was living there, as shown by his marriage license in the same year, and the baptism of several Norton children in the Barmston register. The same register has been searched carefully by the contributor (as well as by a former rector) for the baptism of Edward Carlton's first son, but in vain. In Barmston Edward Carlton would have been in contact with Sir Matthew Boynton, lord of the manor, known to have been interested in the migration to Massachusetts; it may be suggested that he might even have gone to Barmston to act as a steward or agent for Sir Matthew.

By the fine detailed above, made on or about 9 Apr. 1638, Edward Carleton and Ellen his wife sold a considerable property in Ryhill (near her birthplace), a township where the Newton family had held lands for more than a hundred years. The disposal of Edward Carlton's lands in Great Hatfield, inherited through his father's will, has not been discovered, possibly because it was in manor records not preserved or unavailable, but quite as likely because those lands may have been held, according to the terms of the will, to yield income for his brother Thomas, until the expiration of the term of the lease.

Very soon after this sale, the small family joined the party of Rev. Ezekiel Rogers, which embarked probably from Hull, in the ship 'John of London', which appears to have reached Massachusetts in the autumn of 1638. In the spring of 1639 the company commenced the settlement of the town of Rowley (named for the town of Rowley, England where the Rev. Ezekiel Roger was dismissed from his church for non-conformity), where the Carlton's second son, born in October of that year, was the first recorded birth. Edward Carlton was made a freeman of Massachusetts 18 day 3 mo. 1642, and in the earliest town record extant, in 1643, 'Mr Edward Carleton' was a member of the committee appointed to register the several lots of all the inhabitants; he had a house lot of three acres. At the first town meeting of which there is a record extant, held in 1648, 'Ed Carleton and Francis Parrat' were chosen to assist the selectmen in laying the ministry rate, and they were also on the committee to determine every man's proportion of land.

The Records of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay supplement the blank period of the early town records, in showing that Edward Carlton (at the early age of thirty-three) was elected Deputy from Rowley to the General Court 7 Mar. 1643/4, and was returned 29 May 1644, 14 May 1645, 6 May 1646, and 26 May 1647. In order to settle a long standing dispute over land, between Mr Robert Saltonstall, as agent for Sir Richard Saltonstall, and the town of Watertown, without recourse to a trial at the General Court, on 23 Dec. 1647 the parties mutually chose Mr. Edward Carlton and Mr John Johnson as arbitrators, whose award was apparently acceptable to tile disputants. (Suffolk Deeds, vol.1, p.87.)[:ITAL]

During the same period, as shown in the Records and Files of the Quarterly Courts of Essex County, Edward Carlton spent much time in court service. He is recorded (usually as Mr. Edward Carlton) as a member of the Grand Jury at courts held at Ipswich 4:9:1645, 28:7:1647, and 26:7:1648; in 1647 he was appointed a commissioner to settle two civil cases; also in that year and 28:1: 1648 and 27:1:1649, the presentments at Ipswich Court were signed by 'Edwarde Carlton in the name of the rest.'

At home also his judicial ability was recognized: 'Mr. Carleton, Franc Parote, & Mathew Boyse, being lawfully chosen, by the freemen of Rowley, to end small causes according to law, are confirmed therein ' [by the General Court, held at Boston, 10 May 1648]. At Ipswich Court 27:1:1649 Mr. Edward Carlton, Captain Brigggham and Mathye Boyce were chosen and sworn to end small causes for Rowlye.

Soon after this date Mr. Carlton returned to England. There are three of his letters, undated, but from internal evidence appearing to have been written about this time, addressed to Governor John Winthrop at Boston, still preserved in the Winthrop Papers of the Massachusetts Historical Society. In these letters he writes of his intention to go to England immediately, saying "but now the Lord is pleased to try me sadly by some vnexpected newes" and "I doe beleieve, if yt you were but fully possessed with my condition, and also with ye occasion yt moues me to goe into England, you would very much comiserate my case." He therefore importunes the Governor to repay money which it appears he had loaned to Winthrop's dishonest agent, James Luxford, indicating "yt wch your man borrowed of me in your name was most of my estate, out of wch I had a familie to maintaine."

It appears that he had also advanced a considerable sum to the town of Rowley (possibly for the original purchase of land), which was to be paid to the attorney of Mr. Carlton in England. The date of his return to England is indicated in the Rev. Ezekiel Rogers' letter, cited above, as being before 24 Jan. 1648/9. Against that date, however, is the record of a deed dated 'ye 11th of the eighth month 1649,' by which Francis Parrot of Rowley sold 'four acres of salt marsh ground lying upon the east side of Edward Carlton's salt marsh ground,' the deed being witnessed by Edward Carlton. (Ipswich Deeds (Salem), vol. 2, f 269.)

The original undated deed, written in his own hand, by which Edward

Carlton sold his house and three acre lot and nine gates in commons to Henry Sewall, senior, of Newbury is preserved in the Court Papers of 1678. Probably this deed, witnessed by John Smith, was given just on the eve of the departure for England. Other lands, or at least extensive rights in commonage, were disposed of later, through the instrument bearing the date 9 Aug. 1650 as entered in Ipswich Court Records (the original not preserved) by which 'Edward Carlton of Rowley in New England' makes Humphrey Reyner and Joseph Jewett of Rowley his attorneys to sell houses, lands, goods, etc., being the estate of the 'sayd Edward Carlton within the Towne of Rowley or elsewhere in New England.' The witnesses to this document, William Cuthboard and Joshua Booth, are not known in Massachusetts records, indicating that the deed was made in England, and that by this time Mr. Carlton had decided to remain there. The report of the General Court of 22 May 1651 records the appointment of Joseph Jewett and others as a new committee to lay out bounds for the town of Haverhill, in place of "Mr Dummer and Mr Carlton, who were formerly appoynted thereto, beinge now in England." (Records of Colony of Massachusetts Bay, vol.3, p.233.) [ITAL]

That Mrs. Ellen Carlton did not return with her husband is indicated by a fragmentary item in the Rowley Town Records (page 60) under the date of August 1650, "paid to Mst Carlton by the constable." Her subsequent return is also indicated in the deed of her son John, dated 1 July 1661, by which he confirmed the sale of land made by "my mother Mrs. Elinor Carlton formarly, and Mr. Joseph Jewett Attorney of my ffather Mr. Edward Carlton," she being now absent. It has been recently suggested that this expression indicate that Mrs. Carlton had married again, but no record of such a marriage has been found in England.

Final agreement made in the Kings Court at Westminster from Easter Day in 15 days, 14 Charles I [1638], before the Kings justices there, between Thomas Heathcote, senior, George Heathcote, and Thomas Heathcote, junior, plaintiffs, and Edward Carleton and Helena [Ellen] his wife, deforciant, of 40 acres of land, 20 acres of meadow, and 50 acres of pasture in Rialls als Ryhill and Cammerton, whereof a plea of covenant was summoned between them in the same court, that is, that Edward and Ellen have acknowledged the premises to be the right of Thomas Heathcote, senior, as of their gift, and for themselves and their heirs have remitted and quitclaimed the same to Thomas, George and Thomas and the heirs of Thomas, senior, forever. And further, for themselves and the heirs of Ellen, have granted to warrant Thomas, George, and Thomas and the heirs of Thomas in the same against themselves and the heirs of Ellen forever, and against all men forever. For which grant, warranty, etc., Thomas, George and Thomas have given Edward and Ellen 100 pounds. [Endorsed] According to the form of the Statute the first proclamation was made on the 7th day of May in Easter term, in the 14th year of the within written King [1638].

The second proclamation was made 6 June in the Trinity term, 14th year of the within written King [1638]. The third proclamation was made 9

Signature of Edward Carleton

Edward Carlton was one of the original settlers of Essex County. He returned to his native land prior to his death.

In order to settle a long-standing dispute over land between Mr. Robert Saltonstall, an agent for sir Richard Saltonstall and the town of Watertown, Massachusetts without recourse to a trial at the general court, on 23 Dec. 1647, the parties mutually chose Mr. Edward Carleton and Mr. John Johnson, as arbitrators who were apparently acceptable to the disputants.

Edward Carleton spent much time in court service and was recorded as Mr. Edward Carleton, a title of distinction in that day. He was a member of the grand jury at Ipswich 1645, 1647, 1648 and 1649.

Sometime after January of 1649 (exact date not known) Mr. Carleton returned to England. Three letters addressed to governor John Winthrop of Boston are still preserved in the Winthrop papers of the Massachusetts historical society. In these letters he writes of his intention to go back to England immediately and importunes the governor to repay money, which he appears to have loaned to Winthrop's agent, James Lyford.

It appears also that he advanced a considerable sum of money to the Town of Rowley, possibly for the purchase or land, which was to be paid to the Attorney of Mr. Carleton in England.

He sold his house and 3 acre lot and nine gates in the Common to Henry Sewall, Sr. of Newbury.

He made Humphrey Reynor and Joseph Jewett of Rowley, his Attorneys to sell houses, land, goods, etc., 'being of the estate of the sayd Edward Carleton within the town of Rowley or elsewhere in New England.' This document appointing Humphrey Reynor and Joseph Jewett as Attorneys was made in England as Edward Carleton decided to remain there and the document was brought back to America by his son, John Carleton who returned to America and lived at the home of Joseph Jewett and in 1658, married Joseph Jewett's daughter Hannah. John and Hannah (Jewett) Carleton later moved to Haverhill.

The report of the GENERAL COURT, 22 May 1651, records the appointment of Joseph Jewett and others as a new Committee to lay the bounds for the town of Haverhill, in place of Mr. Dummer, and Mr. Carleton, now being in England.

In a deed dated, 1 July 1661, John Carleton, son of Edward, confirmed the sale of land made by 'My mother, Mrs. Elinor Carleton' formerly, and Mr. Joseph Jewett, attorney of my father, Mr. Edward Carleton, she being absent.

Edward Carleton and Ellen (Newton) Carleton had four children: John-born in 1637 in England and died in 1668 in Haverhill, Massachusetts. Edward, born 28 October 1639 in Rowley, Massachusetts; Mary born June 4 1642 in Rowley; and Elizabeth, born 20 January 1664 in Rowley. Edward, Mary and Elizabeth apparently did not return to America.

* This marriage record, with fictitious embellishments as to Ellen Newton's parentage, etc., has appeared in Blodgette and Jewett's 'Early Settlers of Rowley Massachusetts' (1933), p.63. Mr. Blodgette, usually careful as to sources, here unfortunately adopted without question a note published in the Boston Transcript of 3 April 1911 furnished by an unscrupulous and untrustworthy English antiquarian to an American correspondent, who, though personally doubtful about the authenticity of the information, allowed it to be foisted upon the New England public.

The following was taken from 'The History of Littleton, New Hampshire' Volume III, Genealogy prepared by George C. Furber. Pub. By University Press, Cambridge, Massachusetts in 1905:

Carleton-pages 103-104.... Edward Carleton was the first Carleton to settle in America, and the common ancestor of the Carletons of this country. Rev. Ezekiel Rogers and twenty families acquired by grand and purchases a strip of land between Newbury and Ipswich, Massachusetts and made settlement in 1638-1639. This was first called Roger's Plantation and afterwards, Rowley. Edward was one of the largest landowners and was made Freeman in 1642. He was a man of distinction, as a member of the General court and as a Trial Judge until his return to England. He died in England about 1661.

Following is a copy of a petition on file in Essex County Clerk's office:

' To the honored Court now sitting at Salem this 27 November, Anno Dom. 1678. The humble request of Christopher Babbage and Hannah his wife that whereas Mr. Edward Carleton sometime of Rowley left and estate in New England when he went out of this country, part of which (he sending his son John Carleton by virtue of a letter Attorney did receive in his behalf) was conceiving that there being some of his estate unrecieved by his son, desire this Honored Court would appoint some of our relations, Jeremiah Jewett and Nehemiah Jewett or both to be administrators to the estate of the sayd Mr. Edward Carleton that if anything be preserved it may be forthcoming to the children of the said Hannah, relict of the said John Carleton deceased, the only heirs to any such estate (as we can conceive), or as authority shall dispose of it & in your so doing your servants shall pray.

DOCUMENTS CONCERNING EDWARD CARLTON'S RETURN TO ENGLAND Extract from a letter of Rev. Ezekiel Rogers

(The original letter, preserved in the Britlsh Museum (Addit. Mss. 4276. fo. 108). was dicovered by Miss French in 1913. The dates appear confusing at first sight; but after a fresh examination of the original letter and others of the same period, made while this artide is in press, it is clear to me that Mr. Rogers wrote on 24 Jan. 1648/9, the letter being received by Sykes in Hull 5 Feb. 1649/50. This leaves the whole episode perplexing, in view of the other records. The most of the letter, which fills more than three pages of foolscap in the finely written copy, consists of what has been characterized as 'ecclesiastical drool.' A collection of these letters, all of similar nature, is deposited in the library of the Essex institute in Salem, evidently of so little historical value that they have remained unpublished. It is interesting to note that the signature of this letter, 'Ez. Rogers.' is precisely similar to one I have just seen on his return of the transcript of the parish register of Rowley to the diocesan office in York in 1632, though he sometimes wrote out his full name.)

Marriage Notes for Edward Carleton and Ellen Newton:
Shortly after 9 April 1638 Edward and Ellen Carleton emigrated with the Company of Rev. Ezekial Rogers, to become pioneer settlers of Rowley, Massachusetts in 1639. The often repeated tale that the Rogers company came over on the ship John of London, which brought Stephen Daye with the first printing press to reach English North America.

No later mention of the last three children is found in Rowley records; presumably they were taken to England by their mother, and perhaps died early, since John Carlton, in his deed of 1661, speaks of himself as the only heir of his father.

Children of Edward Carleton and Ellen Newton are:

Notes for John Carleton:

The baptism of John Carlton is not recorded in the parish of St. Martin, Micklegate, where his parents were married, or in Barmston, his father's former residence, or in Hedon, his mother's home. All other likely parishes have been searched, but most have no early records. A large part of the Bishops' Transcripts for 1637-8 have been examined, and through a diocesan leaflet a reward was broadcast to incumbents of all Yorkshire parishes for this record, but in vain.

LIEUT. JOHN CARLETON was born probably in Yorkshire about 1637, died at Haverhill, Massachusetts, 22 Jan. 1668. (Vital Records.) He married, probably about 1658-9, HANNAH Jewett, born at Rowley, Massachusetts, 15-4 mo. (June) 1641, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Mallinson) Jewett. As 'Hana Carleton widdow' she married secondly at Salem, Massachusetts, 5-8 mo. 1674, as his second wife, Christopher Babbage of Salem, and was living as late as 27 Nov. 1706, when Christopher Babbage, Sr., of Salem, 'taylor,' and Hannah Babbage, his wife, sold land to their son, Christopher Babbage, Jr. (Essex Deeds, vol. 19, fo 124.)

The petition of Christopher Babbage and Hannah his wife to the Court at Salem, 27 Nov. 1678, requesting the appointment of an administrator to the estate of Mr. Edward Carlton, sometime of Rowley, for the benefit of the children of the said Hannah, represents that John Carleton was sent back from England by his father with a letter of attorney, by which he received a portion of the estate. Probably this was the power of attorney, dated 9 Aug. 1650, given to Humphrey Reyner and Joseph Jewett, but not entered in the court records until 5 Mar. 1656. If so, John Carleton probably lived with Joseph Jewett during the following two years of his minority, and so naturally at his coming of age led the second daughter of the family to the altar that the marriage remained unrecorded. In the will of Joseph Jewett, dated 15 Feb. 1660, he is named, as 'my son John Carleton,' one of the executors. Patience Jewett chose Mr. John Carlton as her guardian, and it was allowed by the court 26 Mar. 1661.

He soon removed to the neighboring town of Haverhill, as shown by a deed of William Holdredge and Isabell his wife to John Carleton of Haverhill, conveying fourscore acres of upland in Haverhill, 22 May 1662. He also purchased lands in Haverhill from Robert Swan in 1663, from Edward Clark in 1665, and from Robert Clements in 1666/7. On 11 Jan. 1664, John Carleton and Hannah his wife of Haverhill sold to John Gage for one hundred pounds 300 acres in Rowley, joyning to the farm of Patience Jewett. (Norfolk Deeds, vol. 2, pp.64, 83, 84,174; Ipswich Deeds, vol. 2, p.222.)

In 1664 Mr. John Carleton was chosen town recorder and Clerk of the Writs for Haverhill, offices in which he continued until 1668.

From a case of Crosby vs. Swan, a writ dated 25 Mar. 1664/5 preserves his excellent penmanship with this representative autograph.

In several similar signatures he was consistent in reviving the spelling of the name used by his great-grandfather and name-sake in Yorkshire, which has been followed by most American members of the family. At a court held at Salisbury, 14 Apr. 1668, Jno. Carleton is recorded as a member of the Jury of trials; and 29 Sept. 1668 a petition was presented to Ipswich court by John Carleton and four others as selectmen of Haverhill. (Records and Files, Quarterly Courts of Essex County, vol.3, pp.198, 239; vol.4, pp.20, 120.)

It would appear that this active career was cut short by a sudden illness, for 'The last will & Testament of Leift. John Carleton of Haverhill, made January: 15:68' is on file in the Essex Probate at Salem, the date, as may be observed, being just a week before his death. By this will he gave his homestead and forty acres of upland in Haverhill to Hannah his wife, the rest of his land and estate to be divided among his sons, with the customary double share to John, the eldest. This will was proved 13 Apr. 1669, and bears the endorsement 'The widow Hannah Carlton did renounce her executorship.' There is also filed, however, a somewhat lengthy petition of the widow Hannah, of the same date, that she may be possessed of the estate her late husband willed to her, not excepting of being executrix, and that 'this honored Court would bee pleased to consider ye condition of my deare children being all but small & haipleis.'

The inventory, taken 25 Jan. 1668 by George Browne, Robert Clement, and Joseph Davis, amounted to £422 12s. 8d. On 2 Sept. 1695 the children having arrived at the full age of 21 years, Peter Ayer, who had been appointed administrator of the estate, joined with John and Joseph Carlton in requesting the court to grant administration 'to Edward & Thomas Carleton sons of Mr. John Carleton deceased,' and 30 June 1696 settlement of the estate by mutual agreement of the sons was reported to the court.

The administrators of the estate of John Carleton late of Haverhill, Massachusetts--deceased: present the following inventory of such lands not yet made a disposal or distribution of nor settled amongst the heirs according as the law directs; which he died seized of in the town of Haverhill.

Impr. 47 acres of land called Oxecommon lands ' two acres and half of East Meadow ' six acres of Hawkes Meadow ' three acres or thereabouts of Hawkes meadow ' about four acres of Ducks Meadow at Spickett Hill Foot ' privilege in common appraised in the inventory given at fifteen pounds '

six score acres of land by Robert Swans deed joining upon Hawke Meadow

This is all at present that we the administrators have to present which if we can agree about to divide amongst the heirs before the superior court in May next we shall present then; but if not we shall request the honorable judge of probate for Essex county to make a division of to the widow and the four children only that now remain that are heirs to said estate.

Notes for Hannah Jewett:

Hannah Jewett was born in Rowley, Massachusetts, 15 April 1641. She married, first, John Carlton son of Edward and Ellen Carlton. He was born in England about 1630. They settled in Bradford, Massachusetts, and removed to Haverhill, Massachusetts, where he died 22 January 1668. Edward Carlton, father of John, was a freeman of Rowley, Massachusetts in 1642, and had the next year a three acre house lot. He returned with his family to England, and soon sent his son John Carlton back to settle his estate in Rowley for him; but John died evidently before he was able to do so, for in the County Court records is found the following petition relative to the settlement of the estate of Edward Carlton: "To the Honoured Court now sitting at Salem this 27 of November, Anno Dom. 1678. The humble request of Christopher Babbage & Hannah his wife that whereas Mr. Edward Carlton somtimes of Rowley left an estate in New England when he went out of the country, part of which (he sending his son John Carlton by virtue of a letter of Atorney did recieved in his behalf), wee conceiving that there being some of his estate unreceive by said son, desire this Honoured Court would appoynt some of our relations, Jeremiah Jewett or Nehemiah Jewett or both to be administrators to the sayd Mr. Edward Carlton that if anything may be preserved, it may be fourth-comming to the children of said Hannah relict of said John Carlton deceased, the only heirs to any such estate (as we can conceive) , or as authority shall dispose of it & in your soe doing your servants shall pray.

'Christopher Babbage. 'Hannah Babbage.'

'Jeremiah Jewett & Nehemiah Jewett have power of administration granted of the estate of Mr. Edward Carlton deceased, who was formly of Rowley and they are enjoyned to bring in a true inventory, at ye next court at Ipswich.'
In Court at Salem 29:9:1678 'Ateste, Hilliard Verin, Clerk.'

She married (2nd) Christopher Babbage son of Roger and Hester Babbage, of Totnes, England. 'Widow Hannah (Jewett) Carlton of Haverhill married 5:8 mo: 1674 Christopher Babbidge son of Roger & Hester Babbidge of Totness, Devonshire, England.' (Essex Antiquarian.)

He came from England in the ship 'Nathaniel, John Adams Master' in 1661, and settled in Salem Massachusetts, (having married Totnes, Agnes Triggs, of Totnes, who came with him. She died at Salem, 17 November 1667, leaving two children, viz., Ruth, born 21 March 1663, and John, born 15 April 1666.) He was proprietor of common lands in Salem that year, and was made freeman in 1665. He was a tailor.

Hannah Babbage was dismissed from the church in Rowley to Salem 6 June 1665.

Hannah and her sister Patience Jewett sold a farm to John Gage. Hannah was living in Salem, Massachusetts as late as 27 November 1706.

He married Hannah C. Kimball June 13, 1712 in Bradford (subdivision), Essex County, Massachusetts, USA (Source: (1) Morrison, Leonard Allison, A.M. and Stephen Paschall Sharpels, S.B., History of the Kimball Family in America, Heart of the Lakes Publishing, Interlaken, NY, p. 58., (2) Early Marriages in Bradford, Mass., NEHG Register, p. 237.), daughter of Richard Kimball and Sarah Spofford.

Notes for Edward Carlton, Jr.:

Edward Carleton, Jr., was born in Essex County, Massachusetts on 20 Feb. 1690, the son of Edward Carleton, Sr. and Elizabeth (Kimball) Carleton. He died in 1749 in Haverhill, Essex County, Massachusetts. He was married on 13 June, 1712 to Hannah Kimball. He settled in Haverhill (West Parish) in the Province of Massachusetts Bay, where we find deeds of land to him as early as 1705. He held a Commission as Cornet of the First Company, belonging to the Regiment of which Richard Salterstall was Colonel. Said commission bears the date of 'the sixth year of the reign of George I' (1717). He is distinguished from the other Edwards by the title 'Cornet.'

Most of Edward Carleton, Jr.'s, papers are still preserved, and are now in the possession of Israel Carleton who lives on the 'Carleton Place' where the Cornet lived and died. This property has been in the uninterrupted possession and ownership of the Carleton family for nearly 200 years. His monument, as well as that of his wife, is still standing in the old churchyard in West Parish, Haverhill, Massachusetts, near the old homestead. There are very few of these old memorials to the dead left standing, although this ancient burial place is completely filled and has ceased to be used.

Edward Carleton, Jr. was on the committee to build the first Meeting House in the Precinct of Haverhill. It appears from the Articles of Agreement, which are in his own hand-writing and are dated 8 November, 1734, that the 'house was to be built Andover West End Meeting House,' the pulpit to be better done than that of North Precinct Meeting House; the deacon's seat and the communion table to be as the committee will order them to be done.

Commission of his Cornetsy is from John Fletcher, Captain General and Governor-in-relief, in and over his Majesty's Province of Massachusetts Bay in New England, and is under his hand and Seal. His last will is dated 8 Nov. 1749. His son, Peter, is appointed executor. It appears from the inventory of his estate, that it was valued £1256, 16s. A very rich and valuable cane, made out of a rare foreign wood, still excellent condition with a stout copper bottom and surmounted by a silver headpiece, the initials 'E.C.' engraved upon it, is now in the possession of Ebenezer Carleton son of Ebenezer Carleton, late of Bath, New Hampshire. The barrel of a long English dueling-piece, which the Cornet left, is still in effective use and was the gift of the Ebenezer Carleton of Bath, to his grandson, Langdon G. Carleton, and is now in the possession of John L. Carleton of Bath, New Hampshire.

The above mentioned relics are carefully inventoried by the County Executor. The gun valued at £3, the cane at 10 shillings. His three wigs are also valued according heir several grades and uses. The faithful Executor does not overlook his three bolts of blue Camblet and of Buckskin, striped jackets, tight long stockings, silver shoe buckles, and two neck and sleeve buttons to match.

Prepared in the late 1800's by a Moses F. Carleton. Property purchased from Worrall I. Prescott in 1973.

"Here lies the body of Cornet Edward Carlton who departed this life, Nov. 29, 1749, in the 59 year of his age."

Notes for Hannah C. Kimball:

"Here lies buried ye body of Hannah, the wife of Cornet Edward Caleton, who died Sept. 9 1741, and in the 51 year of her age."

Notes for Osgood Carleton:

Osgood for a quarter of a century before 1810 was the leading teacher of mathematics and navigation in Boston, Massachusetts. His was the school of the day for instruction in navigation and in the art of map construction.

Osgood enlisted 2 May 1758 in the company of Captain Aaron Fay, Colonel Ebenezer Nichols, and served seven months for the 'Reduction of Canada.' His residence was given as Litchfield. While residing in Woburn 6 April 1759 he was attached to the regiment of Colonel Eleazer Tyng, under the command of Jeffry Amherst for the invasion of Canada. On 1 January 1760 he enlisted as a private in the company of Joseph Newhall, Colonel Jacob Bayley, then stationed at Louisburg. He was discharged 20 December 1760. It was while rendering service in the army of Nova Scotia his talent for mathematics and his skill at original work was recognized. He was made part of the working force among the navigators and artillerists of the King's army and navy. For five years he was under the tutelage of Major-General John Henry Bastide in the provinces and on the high seas.

At the outbreak of the war for Independence he was a patriot. He was present at Bunker Hill, where his brother David was killed. During the first year of the war he was a sergeant in the company of Captain John Wood, Colonel Paul Dudley Sargent and in 1776 the quartermaster of the 16th Continental Infantry. Afterwards he served as a Lieutenant. His physique was such that he could not endure the hardships of campaigns, and he was assigned to the Corps of Invalids. During the later part of the war he was assigned to carry dispatches between Boston and Philadelphia, and in carrying money for the treasury of the Continental Congress, or to paymasters in the field.

Osgood constructed maps of Boston in 1795. The copper plates of these maps in 1801 were placed in the custody of the Massachusetts Historical Society. His map of the district of Maine was issued in 1795. The map of Massachusetts was issued before 30 January 1798. In 1810 he published 'Practice of Arithmetic' which was widely used at the time.

Notes for John Carlton:

John and Lydia (Ladd) Carlton were married in Haverhill, Essex County, Massachusetts, where their families lived, and where they made their first home; and where the first of their children were born. Birth records for Kimball and Hannah are found in the Haverhill records. About 1750, John apparently moved his family to Tolland, Tolland County, Connecticut where they remained as permanent residents and where John was an early owner of land in the area. John was a Lieutenant in the Revolutionary War, serving the company formed by Captain Solomon Wills of Tolland, which answered the call to arms at Lexington, Massachusetts, in April of 1775. He died intestate and his widow declined to administer his estate, asking the probate judge to appoint her son, John, that 'trust.' On 21 July 1786, the son, John, and his brother-in-law, Simon Chapman (husband of Lydia Carlton) posted a bond of five hundred pounds with the probate judge.

An inventory of the estate was filed 31 Jan. 1787, and shows John to have had a well stocked farm of 100 acres with a substantial house, well-furnished, and with a barn stables. His personal wardrobe was of good size and materials. Distribution of a portion of the estate was made to the widow, Lydia, on 17 April 1787, when she received 24 acres of land, the rooms at the south end of the house with furnishings; privilege to use the kitchen for washing and baking; and part of the cellar and barn. The rest was sold to Simon Chapman (son-in-law) as the highest bidder. Final distribution to heirs was made on 23 Apr. 1720. Among those named were Kimball Carlton, ? acres; John Carlton, 6 acres; 'Dirius' Carlton, 6 acres; Lydia (Carlton) Chapman, ? acres. The rest of the heirs of the deceased 'having before received the whole of their shares.'

The birth records have never been found for the children (except Kimball and Hannah), certain facts regarding them come from the above mentioned court proceedings and family papers. Ten children are listed on one DAR membership application. Massachusetts kept good records early; Connecticut did not officially require them until much later.

Notes for Margaret Day:

Mantua township, containing 17,659 acres, was organized in 1810 and included Shalersville, which was cut off in 1812. Preceding this date, log cabins were crudely fashioned from the plentiful woodland. In 1806 there were 27 men here. David Abbott surveyed the township. He was a member of Ohio's first constitutional convention.

Elias Harmon, who married Sabrina Sheldon, coming to the new land from Connecticut in a two-horse sleigh. She was the first white woman here.

To this union were born six children. Eunice, the first, was Mantua's first born white child. The first death occurred in 1804, when Mrs. Anna Judson took arsenic by mistake.

More and more pioneers soon arrived; McIntosh, Burroughs, Moses Pond (who put out an apple orchard from seeds carried from his father's home, and who was probably the first tanner). Others included Darwin Atwater, Jotham Atwater, the Hines and Samuel Moore, who arrived with a wagon, yoke of oxen, two horses, a cow and seven children.

Given names have been handed down for several generations to the present so that we of this last century seem almost personally acquainted with those of the 1800s - years of Moores, Derthicks, Harmons, Plums, Roots, Reeds, Bards, Bakers, Ridges, Blairs, Wilmots, Tinkers, Snows, Frosts, Algiers and others. Still others were Joseph and William Skinner, Ray, Wareham Loomis, Capt. William Messenger, Jonathan Foster, the Stanfords, Ladds, Judsons, Carltons, Squires and their families.

Notes for Kimball Carlton:
Death date may also be 1830.

Kimball Carlton and his first wife, Sarah Kingsbury, lived in Chesterfield, New Hampshire where her father had given them a farm of some 100 acres in the Connecticut River valley. He was a Selectman there in 1778. During the Revolutionary War he served with the New Hampshire forces under Col. Moses Nichols in various battles. After the war, he apparently moved his family to New York State, in the vicinity of Hoosick, Rensselaer County, where his wife and children remained. Sometime before 1790 he with two friends started on horseback to Ohio to buy land, carrying their money in saddlebags. They were last seen near Pine Tavern, near Lansingburgh, New York and it was assumed that they had been robbed and murdered since they were never seen nor heard from again. Sometime before 1790, Kimball Carlton appeared in Virginia, joined a group going into Kentucky, met and married Elizabeth Spillman in 1790 and spent the rest of his years in and near Hardin County, Kentucky. Since there is no record of a divorce in the East, and since his marriage to Elizabeth Spillman took place before his first wife's death, it is generally agreed that he left his earlier family and stayed in the South after his marriage to Elizabeth. His first wife, Sarah Kingsbury, came from a wealthy family, so the first family did not suffer financially from Kimball's absence.

Kimball Carlton was born in Haverhill, Essex County, Massachusetts an area where the Carltons had lived for several generations. Sometime around 1750, while a child, he was taken to Tolland, Tolland County, Connecticut, by his parents. Here his father had a well-stocked farm of 100 acres, with a well-furnished house, and barns and stables. He probably married his first wife, Sarah Kingsbury in Connecticut, after which the young couple moved to New Hampshire where Sarah had 100 acres given to her by her father as a wedding present. The farm was located on rich land in the Connecticut River valley near the towns of Westmoreland and Chesterfield, both in Cheshire County. Kimball was a selectman in Chesterfield in 1775.

In 1776, Kimball Carlton, with 139 other men, signed a 'Declaration' requested of all males over 21 ('lunatics, idiots and negroes excepted') by the Continental Congress. There were only 13 refusals in Cheshire Co. The text of the 'Declaration' was as follows: 'We, the Subscribers, do hereby Solemnly engage and promise that we will, to the utmost of our Power, at the Risque of Our Lives and Fortunes, with Arms, oppose the Hostile proceedings of the British Fleets and Armies against the United American Colonies.'

In July of 1777, Captain Kimball Carlton, head of Company #8 under Colonel Moses Nichols in General John Stark's brigade, in response to a request for help from American forces in Vermont, marched with New Hampshire troops across Vermont to face British forces in New York state and protect Continental Army stores and supplies in Bennington, Vermont. The Battle of Bennington took place some five miles from Bennington, and the defeat of the British in this encounter gave confidence to the Continental soldiers. Historians consider this the turning point of the Revolution.

After the war, Kimball apparently took his family to New York state in the vicinity of Hoosick, Rensselaer County, where the family lived for some years and where Sarah and some of the children are buried.

Before 1790, Kimball left the area and was not heard from again in the East. It seems that Sarah exercised too much power over him, which induced him to leave.

Kimball is buried in the old Union Baptist Cemetery, Vertrees, Hardin County, Kentucky.

Notes for Sarah Kingsbury:

Sarah (Kingsbury) Carlton was a member of a prominent and early family of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Connecticut. Her father, Eleazor Kingsbury, was born 7 Feb, 1718/9, a son of Captain Joseph Kingsbury who was born 22 June 1682 and died 1 Dec., 1757. In addition to Eleazor, Joseph and Ruth Kingsbury had the following children: Ephraim, Hannah, Love, Ruth, Joseph, Ebenezer, Euness, Daniel, Tabitha, and Irene.

Notes for Hannah Carlton:

Hannah Carlton married Daniel Waldo, son of Shubael Waldo of Mansfield, Connecticut. Daniel was born 30 Jan. 1744 and died 13 Dec. 1825 at Chesterfield, New Hampshire. He was a private in Captain Amos Shepherd's Co., Col. Bellows Reg't, which reinforced the garrison at Ticonderoga. Hannah and Daniel moved to Alstead, New Hampshire about 1770, when Daniel's father moved there and gave them 80 acres of land. A brief description of these two young people is found in 'Waldos in America' by J. Waldo Crosby: 'Mr. Waldo was low in stature, thick-set, broad in chest and shoulders, very muscular, quick in understanding, scrupulously honest and very orthodox. His wife was unusually large, weighing 240 pounds and not overburdened with flesh. I have seen her take a barrel of cider from the rear of a cart and place it on the ground quietly. She had the advantage of her husband in height, and, had they ever come to blows, he, though a giant in strength, would certainly have had the worst of it. Once, when insulted by a man of average size, she seized him at arm's length, ran with him over the road, and plunged him into a goose pond.'

He married Clarissa Ladd November 29, 1810 (Source: History of Portage County, Ohio, Warner, Beers & Co., Chicago.), daughter of Daniel Ladd and Persis Davis.

Notes for Peter Carlton:

Peter Carlton was born 3 June 1787, in Stafford, Connecticut, and was a son of Caleb and Margaret Carlton, who were the parents of Hannah, married to John Bestor; Caleb; Lucy, married to Alvin Bestor; Peter; Elias; Sallie, married to Willis Kneeland; Dudley. Our subject was the first Carlton to settle in this county, coming in 1811, his parents following in 1814.

He was married, 20 November 1810, to Clarissa, daughter of Daniel and Persis (Davis) Ladd, and born 23 February 1779, one week before the inauguration of George Washington as President. Says a writer: 'Here, amid the influence of the crude and imperfect civilization that existed in those early days, she was reared to habits of industry and enjoyed only such educational advantages as the limited means of her parents were able to bestow, until she was twenty-one years old.'

Soon after their marriage our subject and wife left for Ohio, and after a toilsome journey of twenty-seven days arrived at Painesville, Ohio, where they met Horace Ladd, who had preceded them a short time. With Mr. Ladd, Peter Carlton and his wife left their wagon and goods, mounted their horses and struck out for Mantua, and on their way, at Welshfield they met a man whose track in the leaves served as a guide to their right course. At night they reached Blackbrook, a small stream with muddy bottom, which with care they managed to cross, while making preparations to cross they started a hog, which ran away, as they supposed, toward a house. They followed it, and soon came to the clearing of Elias Harmon, and from there went to the clearing of Mrs. Carlton's brother, Eleazer Ladd, reaching there about 10 o'clock. They were desirous of settling in Geauga County, but the settlers of Mantua being solicitous about increasing their settlement offered to build them a house and render other necessary assistance. They were induced to make a final settlement. In 1812 the war broke out, and Mr. Carlton went forward to defend his country, after several years spent in clearing the farm, it was traded for the home now owned by their youngest son, P. A.

Peter Carlton died in 1861; his widow survived him several years. One evening she listened to the reading of an excellent book, retired in her usual health, and was found the next morning apparently in a gentle sleep, but it was soon discovered that she was stricken from life's roll on earth and gathered into life eternal. She was the mother of ten children: George born 5 September 1811, died 29 August 1836; Sherman, born 21 June 1813, died 20 February 1851; Caleb D., born 22 May 1815 died 18 December 1867; Francis, born 20 April 1817; Clarissa, born 30 June 1819, married 27 September 1841, to T. P. Sperry; P. A.; Sallie, born 1 August 1823, died 27 May 1845 (she married Robert McMurdy) Lydia, born 14 August 1825, died 27 September 1845; Percis A., born 4 July 1820; Huldah E. born 21 November 1833. P. A., who was born 26 February 1821 in Mantua Township this county, attended the county schools and the school at Kirtland, and was brought up on a farm. He was married 27 September 1848, to Sallie A. Parker, born 8 November 1820, in Aurora, Ohio, daughter of Horace and Achsa (McElwain) Parker, natives, the former of this county, the latter of Vermont. The father, who was a member of the Presbyterian Church, died leaving her and Huldah, and the mother subsequently married James Pease, by whom she had eleven children: Celia, Malinda, Sylvia, Helen, Abner, Samuel and Frank. The mother was a member of the Disciples Church.

To P. A. Carlton and his wife were born ten children: Arah, married to Carrie Donnel (he was a dentist at Mantua Station); Herbert, married to Tillie Parker; John and James (twins), the former married to Hettie Cobb, and the latter to Lou Whittier Clara; Guy E.; Persis E.; Horace P. and Lucy A. P. A. Carlton and wife were members of the Disciples Church. He owned the old homestead of 200 acres. Mr. Carlton was drafted in the late war and hired a substitute. In politics he was a Republican. His brother Sherman's son, Charles, was said, by James A. Garfield who preached his funeral discourse, to have been the first Union man to shed blood in a regular engagement in the late war of the Rebellion. After being seriously wounded he was brought home by Francis Carlton whose sketch appears else where. In this volume will be found the portraits of Peter and Clarissa Carlton, who were exemplary Christian people.

Notes for Hiram Carlton:

Hiram Carlton, son of Kimball and Elizabeth (Spillman) Carlton, was born in Nelson County, but lived all of his adult life in Hardin County, where he was a farmer. He joined the Kentucky Militia when quite young, and served in the War of 1812, where he was in Captain Aaron Hart's Company in the Battle of New Orleans. In 1826 he purchased land in the western part of Hardin County, a new county, thinly settled, and where the land was poor because of the rocky soil. Most of his children, upon becoming adults, left the area for Illinois, and Missouri, and other western states where they hoped to have a better life.

Hiram and his family took an active part in the Baptist Church in the vicinity of Vertrees--later known as "Union" or "Old Union". Community life centered around the church, founded by Rev. Warren Cash into whose family several Carlton children married. Hiram was the church clerk, and church records indicate that most of the business sessions were spent in disciplinary work--dismissing from membership those who were caught swearing, drinking, or breaking other church rules. One of the worst offenders was Enos Glascock, brother-in-law of Hiram.

Hiram Carlton married first, Rachel Hartley; daughter of John and Rebecca (Arvocat/Arbogast) Hartley and they were the parents of five children. Hiram married second, Elizabeth Van Meter and another five children were born to this marriage.

Hiram died intestate in 1876. Family records show that he and Elizabeth are both buried in Old Union Baptist Cemetery, but no stones are in existence today. In order to divide Hiram's estate among his heirs according to law, his land, consisting of over 400 acres, was sold to the highest bidder at a public sale on 10 March 1881 at the courthouse in Elizabethtown. Isaac Newton Carlton, son of Hiram, was the highest bidder, paying $1306 for the land. John H. Wells, Clerk for Hardin County Court, records the deed in Deed Book 29, pp. 310-312.

Notes for Elizabeth Van Meter:

Elizabeth Van Meter, second wife of Hiram Carlton, was a descendant of an early family in America, the immigrant being a Jan Joosten Van Meteren of Holland who arrived at New Amsterdam in September 1662, and lived in a Dutch settlement in the foot-hills of the Catskills. The family increased in size and prominence throughout the eastern states. About 1813, Isaac Van Meter, a descendant of the immigrant, came to Kentucky bringing with him about seven thousand dollars worth of property, chiefly Negro slaves, horse stock, and money. He married in 1817, Rebecca Cunningham (b. Virginia ca. 1800, the daughter of Capt. Isaac Cunningham and Sarah Harness). Other members of the family arrived about the same time, with a number settling in Hardin and Nelson Counties.

Elizabeth's father was Abraham Van Meter (b. 1786 Hardin Co.; d. 1855 Grayson County, Kentucky) m. 1807 Sarah Van Meter, a cousin. Sarah's father was Jacob Van Meter Jr. b. 1762, Frederick Co., Virginia; d. 1850 Mead Co., Kentucky; m. 1786 Elizabeth Rhodes. The father of Jacob Van Meter Jr. was Jacob Van Meter Sr. born 1723 New Jersey; died 1798 Hardin Co., Kentucky; married 1741 Letitia Stroud (Strode). Jacob Van Meter Sr. was the son of John Jansen Van Meter b. 1683 New York; d. 1745 Virginia; m. 1705 New Jersey Margaret M. Moellenauer. The father of John Jansen Van Meter was Jooste Jansen Van Meter, born 1656 Gelderland, Holland; died 1706 New Jersey; m. New York to Sarah DuBois of French descent, daughter of Louis DuBois and Catherine Blanchan. Jooste Jansen Van Meter was a son of the immigrant.

The parents of Abraham Van Meter were Isaac Van Meter and Martha (Hibbard) Hoagland. The Parents of Isaac Van Meter were Jacob Van Meter and Letitia Stroud.
