

Fro

130 Years Ago February 6, 1878

Killed by a mule

James Coughlin, an aged lay brother at St. Rose priory, near Springfield, was fatally kicked in the stomach last Thursday by a vicious mule upon entering the stable in which the animal was standing. Brother Coughlin lived two days after the injury was received, dying on Saturday last.

Will entertain travelers

Martin of Raywick
the

stops, was destroyed by about 4 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Editor Likins to tour

W.M. Likins, editor of American Independent, prohibition organ published Owensboro, has arranged series of meetings in county seats of the state to discuss among other things his recent arrest on a libel indictment this county.

Gift assures scout cabin

That the Lebanon F Scouts will have a meeting place and recreation hall will in connection with the gift of a cabin by the Lebanon F. S. C. be taken care of.