

Goochland, married Mary, daughter of Josiah Woodson, of Dover, Goochland County, Virginia, a Major of the Revolutionary Army, and removed to Maysville, Kentucky, ca. 1804, and died in 1817; by his wife, Elizabeth Woodson, member of the House of Burgesses from Goochland; by his wife, Dorothea Randolph (married October 28, 1751), the sister of Susanna Randolph, who married Carter H. Harrison and aunt to Thomas Jefferson. She died January 18, 1790. He was a son of Josiah Woodson, who died in 1736 (by his wife, Mary Royal), son of John Woodson, of Curles, in Henrico (by his wife, Judith Tarleton, a daughter of Stephen Tarleton, who died in 1687), eldest son of Robt. Woodson, son of Dr. John Woodson, who emigrated from Dorsetshire, England, prior to 1629.

McPheeters

In Foot's Sketches of Virginia, Vol. II, you will find that Dr. Wm. McPheeters, who was born in Augusta County, Virginia, married near Lexington, Kentucky, Elizabeth McDowell, a daughter of John McDowell, in 1804. She died in 1806. In 1810 he was invited to take charge of the academy and to preach to the church in Raleigh, North Carolina. His third wife was Margaret McDaniel of North Carolina.

Caldwell

Rev. David Caldwell, of North Carolina, was pastor of the two oldest and largest Presbyterian churches in the county of Gullford. He kept a celebrated classical school. He was the father of education in North Carolina, and during the Revolutionary War, exerted a strong influence in favor of independence. His brother, Alexander, lived near him. On one occasion, during the absence of her husband, Mrs. David Caldwell was visited by a party of Tories, who ordered their supper. She readily agreed to prepare it, and in the meantime sent her child to Alexander's house with the news. He sent her word to invite them into her best room, to rest, where they would naturally stack their arms, and to serve the meal in the other extreme end of the house. This she did, and while they were eating, Alexander and son possessed themselves of the guns and coats which had been laid aside and, walking into the kitchen, captured the party.

Mike Crain, 3648 Leisure Creek Court, Lexington, KY 40517; 859/368-3853; Postcard13x@aol.com, shares this photo of Jacob/Jackson Wood and Josie Lee Coyle on their wedding day (no date given) in Washington County, Kentucky.

Talbott

One Samuel Talott lived in Fairfax County VA. He married Mary Magdelene DeMovill. Their children were DeMorril Talbott, born July 25, 1754; Samuel, March 17, 1756; Presley, April 9, 1758; Nancy, December 28, 1760; Jemima October 15, 1762; Rodham, February 15, 1764; Sampson, November 27, 1767; Hannah N., January 11, 1770; Katherine, December 8, 1772; Ann, May 27, 1774. Samuel Talbott died December 31, 1771. His wife, Mary DeMovil Talbott, died July 2, 1791, in Virginia. Several of their children came to Bourbon County, Kentucky.

Vivian

Two brothers, Flavel and Harvey, came to the United States from England, the only Vivians, we think, that ever came to this country. Flavel married Fannie, the daughter of William Cotton, who was born in Virginia and served in the Revolutionary War, and married Fannie Taylor, of Shenandoah County, Virginia. He moved with his family to Fayette County, Kentucky, in 1787. Flavel and Fannie Vivian moved to Missouri about 1836. Their second son, George William Vivian, married Mary Ellen Walker. Both were living in 1893 at Higginsville, Missouri. He was then 73 years old. Martin Vivian, a cousin, married Susan Vivian, a sister to George Williams.