The Kentucky Forestry Service has identified the large walnut tree to the left of the home as the oldest living tree in Kentucky. This tree was probably there before the home was.

The house has several rooms, the back part has been altered over the years. However the front four rooms and hallways remain much as they were when they were built. Tall ceilings, wide baseboards, crown moldings, and ceiling medallions have been retained. These rooms have fireplaces located on the outside wall. Notice how the chimney is built in the picture. The home had originally two stairways, now a single stairway provides access to the upstairs.
